TWO A COMPANY, AND THREE A BIG CROWD IN CONTEST JUDGE TO AWARD PRIZES

CRITICISED HER BREAD AND THEN JUST LOOK WHAT HAPPENED TO HIM

WHO THREW COFFEE POT?

Motorcyclists Stage a Race for Two and After a Lap or So Find an Added Starter and Race Is Abruptly Ended.

'Twas Sunday morning and the conversation drifted into the qualifications of motorcycles, their stay-with-it qualities, speed, etc., and as the discussion wandered on, it waxed warm until the race course was selected, and the contest was on.

"Timmie" Dowse and Fred Teschler were the contestants while the course was from Red Hill east on the Foothill boulevard to the Cucamonga corner, then to the First National bank of Cucamonga, then west up the old winery hill, across the old wooden bridge and to the point of beginning.

Just how many laps had been pulled off and just who was destined to be winner history doth not relate, but in the heat of the race when the contestants were going east on the boulevard toward Cucamonga, the pounding of the two motors seemed much louder, and as each party to the race was doing his utmost the old adage "two is company but three is a crowd" was brought home once again, for another had entered the race and the race came to a stop with Motorcyclist Officer Freeman winner. Dowse is said to have been going 43 miles while Teschler was coming at 38. The contestants will appear before Referee Judge Crane here tomorrow, and the prizes will be awarded.

Atmosphere Surcharged

You have perhaps heard that bit of poetry in which every verse ends up with the lines, "Edwin Gott, how that woman can cook."

This incident is along a different, in fact, opposite line, for her husband stated she couldn't cook, but that a neighbor lady was an excellent cook and therewith a plate, and a coffee pot spread through the air and husband's head and a broken plate bear testimony that her aim was good.

About 8 o'clock Monday night the echo of a dull thud and a woman's scream emanated from the Robert Siechert home on Third avenue near Tenth street, followed by an excited conversation. Neighbors gathered before the Siechert home and within a few minutes Officer Redmon knocked at the front door.

According to Officer Redmon, Mr. and Mrs. Siechert had just set down to dinner when Siechert bit into some bread that wasn't well done, and in his criticism of the bread Siechert remarked that Mrs. Teschler was an excellent bread baker. The plate evidently hit Siechert in the head, for he had a mark there, but who threw the coffee pot Officer Redmon was unable to learn, as both Mr. and Mrs. Siechert claimed that the other threw it.

A Mr. Bennett, who lives in a tent at the rear of the Siechert home, recited Mr. Siechert's many fine qualities, but Officer Redmon evidently took little stock in his remarks.

The disturbance soon quieted down after Officer Redmon's appearance and no complaint was issued.

ARMOUR WILL RETIRE FROM PACIFIC COAST

A letter sent out by the Los Angeles office of the Armour Fertilizer Works, makes public a deal of considerable interest to the agricultural interests of Southern California.

The Armour Fertilizer Works is retiring from the field in California, and the local warehouse and sales have been taken over by the Pacific Guano and Fertilizer company, 718 Central Building, Los Angeles.

We understand that the Armour plants at Colton and Porterville will be closed. All mixed goods will be shipped from the Stege and Berkeley plants of the Pacific Guano and Fertilizer company. Packing house by-products, such as dried blood, tankage, bonemeal, etc., will be shipped direct from the Eastern packing plants to the California warehouses, as in the California warehouses, as in the past.

The Pacific Guano and Fertilizer company, a well-known home concern, operates the largest fertilizer plants in the West, and in the Hawaiian Islands, and is also identified with the lime industry, handling all types of agricultural lime, gypsum, etc.

CLAREMONT MAN IS KILLED BY TROLLEY

MISUNDERSTOOD SIGNALS AND STEPS IN FRONT MOVING CAR

Was Ninety Years Old and Expected to Live to See Hundred Year Mark. Was Well Liked and Known in Upland.

C. M. Parsons, aged ninety, well known and highly respected in Claremont, was killed at ten o'clock Wednesday morning when he misunderstood the warning signal of a special Pacific Electric train and stepped between the rails and was hit.

Death was practically instantaneous. The accident occurred at 10 o'clock, but the body was not picked up until thirty minutes later, pending the arrival of a deputy coroner from Pomona.

Parsons left his home intending to board a car for Pomona, he was a few feet south of the tracks when he heard the bell of the special San Bernardino line car, west-bound. He evidently thought it was a Pomona-bound car and rushed toward the depot. To board the car, he would have to reach the north side of the tracks. The motorman sounded his warning bell repeatedly but the old man misunderstood and probably believed the car would stop. Just as he stepped between the rails he was hit. He was thrown possibly twenty feet. The car, which was in charge of Motorman E. C. Tripp and Conductor Doremus, was not going fast at the time.

Parsons, who was known as "Grandpa," was exceedingly active mentally and physically for his age. He was known all over Claremont and in Ontario and Upland. He had recently returned from a trip to Salt Lake City. He was an old-time resident of Claremont. His wife died four years ago.

But a few weeks ago, the old man when complimented on his spryness for his age, said he would live to see one hundred years.

CORNETIST H. J. BURT JOINS COAST ART.

The Upland band has lost its first cornetist, as this week Harold Burt has joined the coast artillery and will play with the band. The cornetists of the local band will go ahead one notch and a new man will be employed. Mr. Burt was exceptionally good on the cornet and the band will greatly miss him.

The concert this year are drawing bigger crowds than ever before in their history, and as a result many drivers of machines forget the enjoyment of the other fellow and leave in the midst of a number. City officials, as well as Director Wilding, request that in leaving the concert you do so between the numbers and not while one is being played. It is the desire of these men to make the weekly concert an entertaining feature and in order to make it a success it is absolutely necessary that each person attending assist.

The program for tonight follows:

1. March Triumphant, "Entry of the Gladiators"—Fueick.
2. Fantasia, "My Old Kentucky Home"—Dalbey. (Variations for all instruments).
3. Chilian Dance, "Manana"—Missud.
4. Waltz, "L'Estudiantina"—Waldteufel.
5. Characteristic, "The Band Strike"—Fahrbach.

6. Star Spangled Banner.
7. Overture, "Jolly Robbers"—Suppe.
8. Celebrated Menuet—Paderewski.
9. Sacred Selection, "Joy to the World"—Barnhouse.
10. March, "Stars and Stripes Forever"—Sousa.

The Sixth St. Helena Vintage Festival will be held August 31 to September 3.

Hops have advanced from eight to twelve cents during the past two weeks and growers are anticipating still higher prices.

Chinese eggs are again being received in California ports, but an effort is being made by egg producers to stop their importation.

CAMP BALDY ENJOYING A BUSY SEASON

GUESTS ARE APPRECIATIVE OF IMPROVEMENTS MADE RECENTLY

Big Masquerade Ball Will Be Feature for Saturday Night and Many Uplanders Will Attend. To leave for Capital.

Camp Baldy is enjoying her usual summer business and once again is the working force on the jump caring for those who are enjoying the summer days there. With the additions made during the past winter, together with the enlargement of the hotel lobby, guests are finding the camp much more pleasant and very little difficulty is being experienced in taking care of the record crowd.

For Saturday night Manager McCulloch is making big preparations for a masquerade ball and the campers as well as many people in the valley are looking forward to one grand time.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCulloch, who have been at the camp since their marriage, left yesterday for Washington, where Mr. McCulloch joins the pay corps, and after several months' training will probably be stationed on one of the U. S. warships.

MAPPING TYPES OF COUNTY ROADWAYS

A comprehensive system of mapping, by which every type of road, every bridge, culvert and by-way will be shown, is being prepared by County Surveyor Sourwine's office. In addition to this, the big maps, which represent months of hard labor by skilled draftsmen, will show the course and distance of every stream, every meander line of the old Spanish grants, every subdivision, its course and distance, no matter how small they may be.

"The need of every county in this state has been a system of exact information with regard to various lands and roads and its relations to other projects," the surveyor said. "San Bernardino now has several thousand miles of these concrete macadam and oil roads. These are shown on the maps in different colors so that at a glance the location and distance of the road is shown. A comprehensive system of indexing supplements this, so that in a brief time the entire system of roads may be examined, with the various kinds of bridges and other improvements."

The maps already made have been invaluable to County Assessor E. J. Gilbert, and the results of his work have been shown in the past year by the fact that there were fewer complaints for equalization than in any previous year in the county's history.

The county is gradually working toward a budget system and the huge maps will contain much information of value toward that end. San Bernardino county has several millions invested in county property of various kinds, and the maps will show a large proportion of it.

Under the new state law, county budgets must be forwarded to the state board of control for approval. It is believed the time is not far distant when knowing how much money the county can afford to spend, the budget system will make it possible to spend every cent to the possible advantage.

"We have the largest county in the world," said Mr. Sourwine, "and when it is considered that we have food control projects, mountain, valley and desert highways, social welfare projects and a multitude of other affairs, the work of cataloging them so that a governing body may make a systematic and comprehensive survey of the whole becomes apparent."

TRAFFIC OFFICERS TO ADJUST LIGHTS

Head Traffic Officer Swisher will be in charge of the official inspection and will issue the cards to automobile owners. Tonight and tomorrow nights only and drivers from the entire west end of the county are expected to be on hand.

Arizona's state fair will be held November 12-17.

The burial was in the family plot in Bellevue cemetery, Ontario.

MOUNTAIN AVE. PRO-TEST IS SUSTAINED

MISUNDERSTANDING AS TO DISPOSITION OF SAND AND STONES

Supervisors and District Attorney Have Different Ideas. Construction Company Now Removing Dirt and Stones.

A misunderstanding as to where the sand and stones were to be placed, and who was to dispose of them in the county work of widening Mountain avenue resulted in a generously signed protest being filed before the board of supervisors on Monday, not objecting to the work, but as to the leaving of rock and stone in the parkway adjoining.

Messrs. Wedel, Harrison, Ira Dinger and A. K. Rae appeared before the board as did officials of the Highway Construction company. In the evidence produced county officials gave the construction company to understand that they would not be called upon to take care of the rock and dirt, but the district attorney's office saw it along a different line and the board of supervisors held up payment.

The construction company is removing the stone and dirt, but it could have been removed at much less cost had the understanding been that the company was to do it in the first place.

DISTINGUISHED MAN ANSWERS SUMMONS

After two years of illness, Arthur Ratcliffe Crossley Hungerford passed quietly away at the family home on Euclid avenue at 7 o'clock last Sunday morning.

Although Mr. Hungerford's health had been for a long time falling steadily, his splendid fight against Fate, his affection of the heart had led his family and friends to hope that this last attack might be conquered as others had been, and that he might be about again. The news of his death, therefore, comes with a shock to the colony, where for ten years he had been known and loved.

Mr. Hungerford came of distinguished English and Irish ancestry. He was born in the southern part of Ireland, where his father, Beecher Hungerford, owned large estates, Fairchild Castle, in the county of Somerset, the home of Mr. Hungerford's English forebears, still stands as one of the ruins travelers visit. This background was evident to the simple dignity and charm which marked him an Irish gentleman.

A son, Beecher, aged twenty, and his wife, formerly Harriet Follinsbee, are left to recall the husband and father as a beautiful and inspiring example of Christian character.

Mr. Hungerford was one of the founders of St. Mark's church, to which he gave without stint of his money, time and interest, and which he had served as vestryman from its beginning.

The burial was in the family plot in Bellevue cemetery, Ontario.

MEETS DEATH WHEN CAR SKIDS AND TURNS TURTLE

Mrs. Kate Lewis, aged resident of San Bernardino, died Monday at San Antonio hospital, of heart trouble, after having suffered a nervous shock, as the result of being thrown from an automobile.

Mrs. Lewis in company with her daughter, Mrs. R. E. Thorpe, the latter's husband, and the two Thorpe children, were going west on the Foothill boulevard near Cucamonga when two wheels of the machine ran into the sand alongside of the road. The car skidded and turned turtle. All the occupants were thrown clear from the car, suffering slight injuries.

Injuries, not sufficient to cause her death, physicians said, were received by Mrs. Lewis, who died three hours later in the San Antonio hospital from heart trouble. Passers by aided in rushing the aged woman to the hospital where Dr. Weber attended her.

The decedent lived at 1260 Acacia street, San Bernardino, and was 64 years of age. She was a native of Kansas and had lived in San Bernardino for the past seven months.

The party was bound for Huntington Beach, where Mrs. Lewis was to attend a meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps, an organization of which she was a member.

ARMENIAN AND SY-RIAN RELIEF WORK

MANY PROMINENT MEN ARE IDENTIFIED WITH THE MOVEMENT

Food Prices Are Way Out of Sight. $33,000 Is Los Angeles' Share per Month. Date Set For Big "Drive."

On Tuesday of this week representatives from the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief met at a luncheon in Los Angeles. Among those present were Mr. McNaughton, secretary of the committee; Mr. Vickery, executive secretary; Dr. Aked of the Peace Commission, and Mr. Papazian. Those attending from Upland were Miss Nina Rice, W. W. Mather and Mrs. H. W. Hawkkinson. Mr. Vickery of New York brought to the committee plans for the work. He said in part that the need was colossal if the nation is to endure. There are 2,000,000 souls to be saved.

Los Angeles' apportionment would be $33,000 per month if the children are to be fed on 10 cents a day. Ten cents a day is rather a modest estimate with bread 40 cents a pound, sugar two dollars a pound and rice a dollar and a quarter a pound. Kerosene sells for five dollars a gallon in Constantinople. Our government loaned $7,500,000 to Belgium and much was sent to give the children a supplementary meal but there is no Armenian station now with which our government may deal, so it will depend upon private means that the children get the first crust of bread. Since breaking off diplomatic relations with Turkey our missionaries who have remained on the field are working with the Swedish consul, so one may be sure all money sent will reach its destination.

The "drive" for the winter food for these children and their mothers is planned for October 21. The need is colossal. How will Upland respond to the call that comes from the oldest Christian nation in the world?

LIBRARY BOOK DAY FOR AUGUST 16TH

The public library board is inaugurating a Book Day for the 16th of August. The library fund is going to be smaller than usual this year, consequently the reading public will have to suffer. The board thought to help out by having a Book Day, which really is an annual affair in some places, when all friends of the library will have opportunity to donate a volume or two. Band concert night has been chosen—the sixteenth—when the library will be kept open during the concert and intermission and afterward, when all may have the chance to at least visit the library whether they donate a book or not. Where duplicates are received they will be forwarded to the soldiers, as there is always a demand in excess of the supply.

The librarian's report for the month of July shows a circulation of 1434, of which the county is 740. Magazines circulated, 104; pamphlets, 3. Attendance, 1538. Books mended, 72; accessioned, 25; total, 2341. Members registered, 38; withdrawn, 16; total, 1511.

The vestibule of the library received a coat of varnish and tint, and the lamp posts blacked, which adds to the attractiveness of the front of the building.

The librarian, accompanied by her husband and sons, has gone on a camping trip at Canyon Home for a week. The library is in charge of Miss Thelma Sikes during her absence.

THE DIFFERENCE IN OPINION TROUBLES

Injunction suit seeking to prevent the Cucamonga Water company from acquiring the Hellman ranch at Cucamonga, comprising 1977 acres at $150 an acre, was filed Monday by the Mission Vineyard company, holder of stock in the water company. There is a division of the board of directors over the purchase. It is charged by the company, and the vineyard company sets forth that the property is not worth more than $100 an acre.

Asks Big Damages

Listing injuries that ruined him for life, Luis Mendoza of Cucamonga Tuesday filed suit for $26,026 damages against R. M. Welch, wealthy resident of Cucamonga. Mendoza charges that Welch's son was driving the family automobile when he ran over Mendoza on April 5. Attorneys Hodge & McNabb represent the plaintiff.

COUNTY SEALER OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES GOES AFTER BREAD BAKERS

BAKERIES WILL RESIST AND TRY TO UPSET ORDINANCE, INDICATED

BOSTON BAKERY INCLUDED

County Sealer of Weights and Measures Will Take up Question of Milk Containers. Gallon Should Weigh 8.60 Pounds.

Decision to enforce the county's bread ordinance requiring bread to be baked in 12, 24 and 36-ounce loaves, was announced yesterday by S. F. Kelley, county sealer of weights and measures, following a conference with District Attorney T. W. Duckworth.

Complaints were ordered against Carl Nelson of the Boston Bakery, Upland, the San Bernardino Bread company and the Faultless bakery of Redlands, all of which are delivering bread to points within the jurisdiction of the county authorities which does not meet the requirements of the ordinance.

Size of bread of off-sizes and weights at Little Bear valley, Big Bear valley, Highland, Del Rosa, Fontana, Alta Loma and Cucamonga, which are not in incorporated cities, is charged. The county has no jurisdiction over bread sold in incorporated cities, and none of the cities of the counties followed the county's lead in designating the weight of bread, as contemplated in an order from the state sealer of weights and measures.

That the bakeries will resist the charge and attempt to upset the ordinance was reported.

Additional complaints will be ordered as the prosecution progresses.

Ready to Prosecute

"The county ordinance which prescribes that bread shall be sold in 12, 24, and 36-ounce loaves means exactly what it says, and the district attorney's office is ready to prosecute violators of the ordinance," said Deputy District Attorney Campbell Monday, in discussing the report that certain manufacturers and vendors of bread were selling bread in 16 and 18-ounce weights.

"The trouble with the ordinance is that it affects but one bakery in the county, that being the one at Loma Linda. The other bakeries which are located within cities are not affected by the ordinance, and if these concerns sell bread of 16 and 18-ounce weights it places the county bakeries at an unfair advantage."

"However, County Sealer of Weights and Measures S. F. Kelley has stated that as soon as he found the ordinance to be perfectly legal he intended to go ahead and enforce it."

After Milk Containers

If the milk you are getting weighs 8.60 pounds to the gallon, it will be all right, but if it is short weight, it's all off with the milk man. The state's department of weights and measures has taken up the question and S. F. Kelley, county sealer of weights and measures, is in receipt of the following from Sacramento:

"I beg to advise that this department has fixed the net weight of raw milk at 8.60 pounds per gallon. In estimating quantity of milk by avoirdupois weight, 8.60 pounds per gallon shall be the legal net weight of milk per gallon, and there shall be no tolerance allowed."

This comes from Charles G. Johnson, state superintendent of the department, and of course is a direction to all local officers which they will follow.

"Mr. Kelley was not ready to announce his policy in enforcement yesterday, for the reason that he had not decided what plan will be fair to all concerned. Practically all milk is sold in bottles, except to large consumers, the bottles being presumed to hold one pint or one quart. Whether it will be necessary to make some tests to determine that quart bottles hold 2.15 pounds of milk and pints contain 1.175 gallons, Mr. Kelley was not ready to say, although he indicated that he would enforce this provision as he has all others, and the number of weights and measures that he has tested in half of the year is little less than amazing, while not a few of them have been adjusted and quite a number condemned."

Cherries are ripe at Wenatchee, Washington.

The State Poultry association proposes to follow up its members who violate contracts made to market through the association.

The Napa County Fair association has chosen the dates of September 22-26 and has named a bunch of committee to push for a big fair.

Salute to the Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the American Flag;
And the Republic for which it stands;
One Nation, indivisible,
With Liberty and Justice for all."

THE sudden appearance of Secretary McAdoo with a demand for a cool $5,000,000,000 additional for the present fiscal year should serve to arouse America to the seriousness of the war. The first impulse is to complain that this expense should have been earlier foreseen, or that the government is getting unduly gay with its demands for funds and its spending privilege. But whether these suspicions are in any measure justified or not, the overruling fact is that the carrying on of a modern warfare is an undertaking of which history affords no parallel. If this war has been a financial shock to Europe it is destined to be even a greater shock to the United States, which is depended upon to serve as banker for its allies, who have already spent a great part of their substance.

Congress, which has been quibbling over millions in the adjustment of war taxes, naturally is stunned by the new demands conveyed in denominations only of billions. The senate, after spending much time and agony in paring down the amount to be collected by taxation a few hundred millions, is about to be confronted with new demands both in taxation and bonds which will make its former quibblings seem like child's play. * * * Hemet News.

BILLY SUNDAY is coming to Los Angeles. Great accomplishments for the uplift of Southern California are expected from the famous evangelist by his supporters and freely prophesied by his advance agents.

There are always those who doubt and who are skeptical as to the great evangelist's powers. Some there are who maintain that because he does not go after the root, the cause, of evil, but seeks only to improve the results, he is not making the use of his powers that he should. Sunday maintains that if he shows the people the way to right living sin will cease to exist. Others maintain that as long as the government allows to exist institutions and conditions which produce evil, there will be evil, and maintain that as long as good citizens neglect their government they will contribute to the evil extant in the land.

In the humble opinion of this paper, Billy Sunday is doing a valuable work for humanity. In our humble opinion also he could do a work far more valuable if he understood the way.

In the last weekly publication of the Los Angeles City Club, a few political and sociological principles are presented, and it is asked if Sunday will emphasize these principles. It is to be hoped that he will, in his magnetic and influential manner, make them themes of some of his discourses.

For Sunday's consideration and the thoughts of his friends the Citizen gives publicity to those principles as set forth in the City Club publication:

1. Good men, if uninformed, misinformed or misguided, often cause a lot of mischief. Goodness alone cannot prevent bad government or insure good government.
2. Ignorance, poverty, sickness, and injustice, are largely responsible for vice and sin.
3. The forces that cause or aggravate ignorance, poverty, sickness and injustice are increasingly social rather than personal.
4. Any successful attack upon vice and sin must therefore mobilize such social forces as education, employment, sanitation, recreation, food, and water supply, proper housing, and eugenics.
5. The one agency through which the community as a whole can act is the government—municipal, state, and national.
6. Governmental waste and inefficiency are mainly due to poor organization, defective equipment, narrow-gauge policy, and bad management, rather than to dishonesty or wicked intention.
6. By erosion of such waste and inefficiency, municipal, state and national governments are causing or permitting more ignorance, sickness, poverty, misery, and vice than all other social agencies combined (including the church) can cure—unless they work through and upon the government and utilize its vast resources.—Hollywood Citizen.

THE latest dispatches from Berne show that the commercial problems with which Switzerland has, from the first, been faced in consequence of the war, do not diminish in number or complexity, although they, to a certain extent, keep changing in character. Surrounded as she is by belligerents, nominally free to trade with either group, but actually restrained at every turn, her position is a particularly difficult one, and it argues much for the genius of the Swiss statesman and man of business that the little republic has fared as well as it has.

The great difficulty all along has, of course, been the question of raw materials. Large quantities of these Switzerland was wont, before the war, to secure from Austria and Germany, but the war had not been in progress many months before both Berlin and Vienna were holding up supplies, and declaring that they could not let them go through unless Switzerland engaged to export to them certain quantities of rice, of which the Central Powers stood sorely in need. Switzerland was in a dilemma. She herself could, of course, obtain rice only from abroad, and the Allies refused to allow her to import it unless she engaged not to re-export it to Austria or Germany. No permanent settlement of the many questions involved has ever been arrived at, and the Swiss manufacturer has been obliged to carry on his work by the harassing method of occasional concessions from both sides. The case is typical. Nevertheless, taken as a whole the country has gained rather than lost financially as the result of the war, and this is largely due to the extraordinary adaptability displayed by the Swiss manufacturer. Thus many manufacturers, who previously devoted themselves to watchmaking, have converted their plants so as to turn out war material, watchmakers, indeed, being found specially capable of making the more delicate parts of the mechanism of guns and shells. It is somewhat the same in other directions; whilst the manufacturers of chocolate are, as might be expected, doing remarkably well.

Another difficulty with which Switzerland has to contend is the enormous extent to which her industries have been internationalized. Some of the most important companies in the country are dominated by foreign capital, and, as the tendency in every company is to organize and reorganize its directorate so as to bring it into alignment with the constitution of its shareholders, the difficulties confronting the Swiss business man, often a prominent statesman, in maintaining his neutrality, must be many and serious. Discussing the question, over eighteen months ago, a prominent Swiss paper pointed out the danger which such a condition presented to the purity of Swiss political life, and it is, of course, this aspect of the question which calls for constant watchfulness on the part of the authorities.—Christian Science Monitor.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA has seen developed within her confines many famous men, but none there were who had more staunch friends and more enemies than Harrison Gray Otis, editor of the Los Angeles Times. Otis was not an ordinary man, for he possessed that fighting tenacity that makes an institution a success. The Pacific Coast may thank Otis, and Otis alone, for the high standard of news service maintained, for it was he that set the pace which today gives to the coast and to Los Angeles in particular, newspapers which are said by men of wide experience to outclass anything west of Chicago. Whatever may be said for and against Otis and his Los Angeles Times, they stood steadfastly for or against an issue and stood there sink or swim, win or lose. Otis has passed to the great beyond, and as head of that great newspaper Harry Chandler will continue as directing head and readers may expect the same excellent news service and whether or not the policies will be changed, remains for history of the years to come to divulge. Comments on the life of Otis are varied and many and even the opinion of newspaper men are at a decided variance. Harlan G. Palmer, editor of the Hollywood Citizen, says: "May it be said of him that he was a good man in his home and in his family life." John E. King, a stalwart Democrat and editor of the Hemet News, says:

"There was a good side to Otis. His love for American institutions and his intense patriotism, inherited from Revolutionary sires, caused him now and then to place the country's good above the sordid plane of partisanship. In the last few months the Los Angeles Times has been a steadfast supporter of the Wilson administration so far as the war with Germany is concerned, and he has not spared members of his own party who have sought to embarrass the government for political effect. And, above all, he has made a great newspaper, and if it reflected the personality of Otis, it was a personality with the background of ability and aggressiveness. Despite eccentricity and bitterness, the Los Angeles Times has accomplished much for California. And the Los Angeles Times was Harrison Gray Otis."

J. L. Mathews, editor of the Covina Argus, says of Otis: "That there is no difference whatsoever between the civil and the military life as regards the necessity for brains, initiative and courage in order to succeed, is peculiarly and forcefully exemplified in the life of that big soldier-civilian, General Harrison Gray Otis, editor of the Los Angeles Times, whose death occurred this week. He was a man possessing more initiative than the comrades around him who marched and bivouacked from 1861 until 1865, else it would not have been a fact that he became a top sergeant in his company in a year. That he became a second lieutenant, and then a first lieutenant, and then the captain of his company, while others were made corporals and sergeants, and still others remained privates to the end, was because the young man possessed an indomitable courage which hardship and adversities could not beat into apathy. We do not have to know him at all to know that this is true. His record tells the story without bias and without emotion. That he was three times wounded and remained in the army to the end, shows he was not willing to take advantage of a good excuse to quit. He was a man not satisfied to do his bit, his bit consisted in giving all that he had. He brought the same fighting spirit into this country when he came here in the eighties. He fought a greater, a more bitter fight as pioneer editor and civic leader than he did in any of the engagements in which he participated in the Civil War, and his victory has been greater in civil life, more spectacular now that we look back on it, and more lasting. His fame will be cumulative, for he has left the imprint of his steady, forceful hand on many hundreds of civic projects in California, whose worth to the community are yet to be realized in full."

WASTE PREVENTION ASKED OF WOMEN OF AMERICA

A memorable appeal from President Wilson to the women of the nation, whether living in city, town or country, was issued recently through Secretary of Agriculture D. F. Houston to take immediate steps to avoid a threatened loss of vast amounts of perishable fruit and vegetables, especially in twenty-four states that have asked governmental assistance and information on how housewives may immediately start canning, preserving, pickling, drying and storing.

The advance organization work has all been completed by a special committee working nationally under the direction of Secretary of Agriculture Houston, and the most intensive campaign, especially in the twenty-four states in distress, will be conducted during the next three weeks. The president's letter follows:

Commends Plans
"Mr. Secretary and Gentlemen of the Committee:

"I very earnestly desire to commend your plans and to second your efforts to secure the conservation of surpluses of perishable food products. Out of the depths of their patriotism the farmers of the nation gave an immediate and effective response to my appeal to increase production. Providence favored them and we have not only the prospect of increased crops of a number of staples, but also the certainty of a large production of fruits and vegetables."

"But increased production, important as it is, is only a part of the solution of the food problem. It is of the first importance that we take care of what has been raised and make it available for consumption. This task is of peculiar urgency with reference to our perishable farm products. It is essential not only that adequate measures be taken to secure their conservation, but also that the department of agriculture redouble its efforts to assist producers in the matter of marketing."

"I am informed that in many sections in which fruits and vegetables have been produced in abundance the people already are canning and drying them in large quantities. But we should be content with nothing short of the perfection of organization, and should be unwilling that anything should be lost. In this hour of peril I am concerned, as I know you are, with the necessity of avoiding waste. Every bushel of potatoes properly stored, every pound of vegetables properly put by for future use, every jar of fruit preserved, add that much to our insurance of victory; add that much to hasten the end of this conflict. To win we must have maximum efficiency in all directions. We cannot win without complete and effective concentration of all our efforts."

All Can Aid
"We can all aid by increasing our consumption of perishable products. Such of them as we can efficiently utilize, we must utilize, and, by so doing, relieve the strain 'on our store of staples. We must aim to consume these things locally so far as possible and thus relieve the pressure on transportation agencies, freeing them for the more efficient handling of products required for military purposes. What we cannot presently consume we must conserve."

"The service we are asking the people to render in this matter is a public service. It is one primarily for the household. Upon the housewife much of the burden of the task will fall. I join you in your appeal to the women of the nation, whether living in a city, town or country, to devote their time, so far as it may be feasible and necessary, to the performance of this very essential work. Among them some will be found who are fitted by experience to teach others, and they will put their knowledge wholeheartedly at the service of their neighbors."

Counts on Editors
"I am sure that we may confidently count upon the cooperation of the editors of the nation in disseminating the necessary information. I am equally certain that the governors and the food committees appointed by them in the states in which this problem is urgent will leave nothing undone to attack it promptly and to assist in solving it."

"Faithfully yours,"
"WOODROW WILSON."
The particular vegetables that have been raised in home yard gardens in cities and rural communities, as well as by farmers, and which are threatening vast waste from their abundance, are: Tomatoes, beets, potatoes, beans, cabbage, onions, sugar corn, peas, carrots. The fruits are: Peaches, apples, pears, and in some of the states blackberries.

The resources of the government with the volunteer help of neighbors to each other, schools, clubs, governors, and the press, will be put behind this intensive effort for three weeks, and longer in certain states where required. In the simplest detail the housewife and "mother-and-daughter clubs" everywhere will be told how they may render this most patriotic service in their homes. They are to be asked first to put by food for their own consumption, and, second, to devise the best methods of marketing their surplus products locally.

Owing to the shortage in the supply of tin containers, most of the preserving and canning will have to be done in glass jars of which 900,000 of the Mason jar type, have been distributed through the manufacturers for the present season's needs. The total manufacturing capacity of this type of jar, which will be increased by the manufacturers as necessary, is approximately 6000 gross per day, or 85,000,000 jars during the next hundred days.

Seasons come and go and, almost without warning, years have gone by.

Conservation of Time

The accomplishment of all planned tasks, whether great or small, depends on how you shape your moments.

Seconds evolve into minutes, minutes into hours, and hours into days.

If given time to accomplish a task without interruption—it is easy.

But who is it that is not interrupted? The housewife, the business man, the office man, the rancher, all have two or more things to perform at the same time.

To save steps, mental disturbance; to accomplish results and reduce the minor details of daily routine—make the Telephone be your servant; you have no right to spend a portion of the day to accomplishing a certain task when it can be handled in a few moments by the use of the Telephone.

Come one, come all; always room for one more!

Weiner Bake
Twenty-five young people, more or less, were very happily entertained Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. James Bell at their home just south of the cannery. A weiner bake was the center of interest, the juicy weiners with their accompaniment of dills, buns and toasted marshmallows, disappearing like hot cakes on a cold winter morning. Games and music were played around the fire and a jolly good time enjoyed by all.

Looking Forward
One of the interesting weddings of early September will be that of Miss Geraldine La Petra, daughter of Mrs. T. W. La Petra, of Glendale, to Frank Olmstead, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Olmstead, of Los Angeles. Miss La Petra will be well remembered here as a popular young teacher at the Guasti school a year ago. Since leaving her work here, Miss La Petra has been interested in the social service work in Los Angeles, but from now on she will be at home with her mother until the interesting event which will make her a bride takes place.

Guessing Again?
Some time ago the Salt Lake railroad company surveyed for a new short line cut-off route from Ontario up through the Cucamonga wash, crossing the Santa Fe tracks near Hellman avenue on a bias line to Cajon Pass. It now appears from the recent purchase by the Salt Lake system, of the Crestmore line running from Riverside to the Cement Hills, that the projected cut-off will be at Wineville for the present at least; so are the indications, instead of Ontario, although railroad people still believe that eventually the short line will be made at Campus avenue, Ontario, and run crosswise through Cucamonga, which would eliminate all the uphill haul both ways from Ontario to Cajon Pass.

Adios
As a farewell to Mrs. W. C. Findlay, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Bishop entertained a few friends at cards last Saturday evening, five hundred being the popular pastime. Nasturtium blossoms and greenery, combined with the tri-colors, formed the decorative scheme. Cooling punch and refreshments were served, miniature flag plus being used as favors. The high scores of the card play were made by J. P. Peterson and Mrs. F. M. Frost. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Frost, Mr. and Mrs. G. Nelson, Crowwell, Mr. and Mrs. James Sharp, the guest of honor Mrs. W. C. Findlay, Misses Lillian Frost and Clara Young.

A Mysterious Find
The discovery of a fancy jewel box hidden in the yellow sands of the wash, near the boundary line between the Henry Canup and A. J. Straight peach orchards on Turner avenue, by Messrs. Canup and Straight, as they were picking peaches in that vicinity last Saturday, created quite some little excitement and "thereby hangs a tale."

As we have reported, many of our ranch homes have been entered by some petty thief during the past six weeks and many and various articles reported missing, a young Mexican being suspected. It is believed that he became frightened at the publicity given the thefts and was afraid to dispose of his loot and buried it in the sands until such time as the notoriety blew over. In the case was discovered a gold bracelet, set to diamonds, a gold pin, a gold watch, a fountain pen, a check book, bearing the name of Mr. McCamey, some pictures, papers, even a pin cushion, and some other trinkets. The bracelet, with its owner's initials, was immediately identified with Mrs. G. C. Down, of Turner avenue (a cousin of Mrs. W. H. Stipe) as one that had mysteriously disappeared from her home a month or so ago. The check book, pictures and papers were claimed by Mr. McCamey, same having been stolen from the cottage occupied by him on Mrs. Marie Moeller's place, a few weeks ago. The watch and fountain pen he failed to identify as the ones he had lost. The balance of the articles are still in the hands of Mr. A. J. Straight, who purchased the Pohl properties on Turner avenue, and last identification. The officers are still on the hunt for the suspected man.

What the Hot Spell Does
Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Welch are spending the month of August at Balboa Beach. This popular resort is fairly turning people away for lack of accommodations this summer, which has been the most ideal season for all the beach resorts in many long moons.

Pioneer Goes to Her Last Rest
The funeral services for Mrs. John Smith, who passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Henderson in Etiwanda, were held in Ontario Tuesday afternoon at 2:30, and were attended by many of her old friends and neighbors from Cucamonga. Mrs. Smith was some 80 years old and will be well remembered by the old residents of Cucamonga where she at one time made her home.

Opposition
Stockholders of the Cucamonga Water company who at a recent meeting led the opposition in the matter of purchasing the big Hellman tract in contemplation, have now filed an injunction, and the case will be tried Tuesday, August 14th, before the court in San Bernardino.

Congratulations in Order
Mr. and Mrs. Chas. T. Brown are the happy and proud parents of a fine wee baby girl, weighing 7½ pounds, which made her debut into this vale of tears on last Saturday evening at the San Antonio hospital. Mother and babe are both reported as doing fine and Mr. Brown is passing around the cigars. The dainty miss has already been named Miss Katherine.

A Family Gathering
Last Thursday evening the charming home of Supervisor and Mrs. W. J. Kincaid on Turner avenue was a scene of a family gathering and a bountiful dinner, covers being laid for Mrs. D. L. Keyes of Long Beach, a sister of Mrs. Kincaid's, Mrs. Will Ewing and daughter, Miss Ramona, of Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling P. Kincaid, Master Sterling, Messrs. Howard and William Kincaid, Miss Frances Shumaker, and the hosts. The piece de resistance was a 25-lb. albicore, caught by William Kincaid at Catalina, and as big as a turkey and just as enjoyable. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed. Mrs. W. J. Kincaid returned to Long Beach on Saturday with her sister, Mrs. Keyes.

Announcing Engagement
Cards are out announcing the betrothal of Miss Frances Lillian Shumaker to Walter Frank Keen, a promising young attorney of Los Angeles. The wedding is set for some time in the early fall. Miss Shumaker is the popular and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Kincaid, and is spending the summer vacation months with them after a year's teaching at La Habra.

Farmers of the Northwest are inclined to hold their wool for still higher prices and warehouse companies are urging immediate sales of at least a portion of the clip.

A county cow testing association in Idaho finds its average around 29 pounds per month. As some of the cows run above 50 pounds plainly there needs to be much elimination.

The greatest opportunity is General Farming, and will be for years to come. Everything that the ground produces in general farming is bringing top-notch prices. I have repeatedly advised those who want to get a small farm, the time for doing so was now. Good farm lands in the San Joaquin and Sacramento Valleys have advanced in price in the last sixty days. I have made arrangements to handle small farms in the Orland district, Sacramento Valley. Plenty of water with the land at attractive prices and terms. This is absolutely first class.

Let me talk with you and give you information.

Yours truly,

A RECOLLECTION

BY THE EDITOR

She was full-floating, with strictly straight lines, and of practically the same distance east and west, as north and south.

Now perhaps, dear reader, you don't get me, but the above paragraph describes very vividly my first music teacher, and in those years and at my tender age, I regarded her as the queen of queens, and since becoming older I am firm in the opinion that my Dear Teacher trod the straight and narrow path, and never in her life resorted to that awful word "dammit."

History repeats itself and in those days the would-be popular lads learned to play mandolins, just as those young people of today—where there's "nobody home"—thrum the days in and out to discordant notes on a ukulele, and whisper sweet nothings that result in Theodore Roosevelt families and other troubles.

My Dear Teacher lived within a half block of where I ate, slept, took my enforced bath in a foot tub and endured other diverse necessities which ruffled my boyish disposition, and preserved my good health, and prepared me for the responsibilities which man usually assumes in this life. Dear Teacher occupied a portion of a house only—the other portion being occupied by a widow.

'Twas in the midst of those music lessons that I was awakened one night by a familiar accent that, an hour each week, was endeavoring to drill into my ivory dome the whys and wherefores of sweet tones—this conversation was along a different line, however, as Dear Teacher addressed my mother:

"I was sleeping soundly when suddenly I heard the loud rapping of wood upon wood, and the echoes roused me into instant action. I am not afraid for myself, but if Mrs. Van Tassle has been murdered I want a witness that I am not guilty of the deed."

Now, dear reader, imagine a boy of ten, awakened in the middle of the night to listen to such a conversation, and as it proceeded, knowing that he was to have the job of witness wished on him before many minutes passed. My knees pounded violently against one another, and in that grandmother feather bed I shivered up like the proverbial oyster that attended the church supper; but, as I expected, my mother gently called, "Come here, son."

There I stood in my nightie, Dear Teacher reciting what she desired me to do and, as she stated that I need not be afraid, she pulled a gun two feet long from within the folds of her skirt, the cloth of which would make a tent 10x12. Having never seen a revolver at such close range in all my earthly experience, of course it helped my nerve—oh, yes!

Dear Teacher stated that the necessary articles for me to procure to fulfill the role of witness were a strong, wooden-bottomed chair and a lantern. The chair was to be used as a steppladder that Dear Teacher might enter the window, while I suppose the lantern was to find the burglar, murderer, or whatever it was we were after.

You have perhaps heard, dear reader, of that verse in which it is said, "When thy last summons comes, go thou not like a dumb, driven slave." I confess that I was not driven. I was led. For it was with faltering step that I approached what seemed to me the place where I was to pass into another land, for as I think of it now it really didn't make any difference to me whether Mrs. Van Tassle had been murdered or not.

We approached the scene of the "loud knocking of wood upon wood" as quietly as possible, although my heart thumped and pounded on. The noise seemed like that of a Gatling gun in action.

The solid, wooden-bottomed chair was placed beneath the window, and I deemed it my duty to hold the chair while Dear Teacher entered. But not so. I was instructed to walk to the edge of the lawn, with lantern in hand, and there stand with my back to the window. Years have rolled on, and although, as I have intimated in the above lines, Dear Teacher was not blessed with a chorus girl form, she was determined that nothing scandalous should happen. Had I in the darkness of that night caught even a passing glance of Dear Teacher's ankle, the propriety of things would have indeed been smashed.

Being the grandson of a Congregational minister, and at that age my inherited characteristics still slumbering within my breast, I dutifully did as instructed. With lantern in hand that I might see the burglar or murderer should he leave the place, and with my knees playing a tattoo, I stood there a weak, but faithful sentinel of the night.

Of a sudden, I heard pounding of wood upon wood, and a groan emanated from whence I had left Dear Teacher. Scared beyond possible description, there came to my mind the Bible story of Lot, "Escape for thy life; look not behind thee, neither stay thou in all the plain; escape to the mountain, lest thou be consumed." But like Lot's wife, I "looked back from behind," and in the dim star light I saw that Dear Teacher had ascended to the window sill, but the opening compared with her embonpoint, might be well compared with the rich man endeavoring to pass through the eye of a needle, en route to a heavenly home.

Being the grandson of a minister, I disobeyed instructions to the contrary and transformed myself into what is known in railroad circles as a "booster," for with each lunge of Dear Teacher toward the interior of the house her breath became more heated and what she needed was help, regardless of the rules and regulations of what was perfectly proper and ladylike.

Like the hero of old, I rushed to her rescue. In spite of the embarrassing position, through which I rendered assistance, with a mighty shove, Dear Teacher landed on the inside of the house with the window frame a total loss, and if there was anything artistic in the sight that passed my eyes, I saw it not.

Again taking up my position as the trembling sentry of the night, I waited breathlessly with lantern in hand to witness whatever horrors should transpire.

My waiting was of short duration. Dear Teacher soon appeared and gently whispered, "Mrs. Van Tassle is sleeping peacefully and I find nothing disturbed within the confines of the house. I thank you for your valued assistance and now you may repair to your home."

"Repair" to my home I did and as dawn crept in on a night of horrors I ceased tossing in a nightmare replete with burglaries and murders, to dream for the moment of art, gone wrong.

At the Churches

Union Church Notices

The union services of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches will be held in the Methodist church in the morning at 11 and in the public grounds of the city in the evening at 7:45. So many people remain in Upland during the summer that it has proven well worth while to make the most of the summer services. The music for this month is presented by the very able choir of the Methodist church. The pastor of the Presbyterian church will preach. The sermon subjects for this week are, in the morning, "The Prophet Without a Vision," and in the evening, "Faces at the Window."

Our public grounds have been made so attractive with the green lawn and splendid lighting, that it is well the friends of the community use it to the full capacity. The splendid band concerts have made this known as a place of high class entertainment. The churches invite the whole community to the evening services held here. These are made pleasing by song and praise to people of any faith. All are invited to join in the public singing. All available space for the parking of automobiles within sound of the speakers is being taken by an appreciative public. Come again Sunday night.

TRAIL BLAZER FOR NATIONAL BOUNDARY HIGHWAY

Conspicuous on the streets of Washington during the recent inauguration of President Wilson, was a Saxon Roadster bearing on its side the inscription, "Trail Blazer for National Boundary Highway." From Washington this car will be sent around the boundary of the United States and will be the first vehicle of any sort to completely define our border. The car started south on March 6 and will return to Washington late in the summer.

For some time there has been an agitation for a national border highway which would afford not only a splendid opportunity for pleasurable touring, but which would link up our border towns, in a commercial way, as only good roads can. Also it would be the most practical aid to an adequate coast defense.

Automobile clubs and civic organizations have been slowly stimulating a movement which will work for the completion of this enterprise—and it will come.

It remained, however, for the Saxon Motor Car corporation to institute the trip, which will, more than anything attempted yet, contribute to a successful highway.

One of the standard equipped roadsters will travel every foot of the proposed highway, and exhaustive reports on the conditions of the roads and the cities the route should reasonably include will be submitted.

The car, at this time, has completed almost half of its journey and has made a splendid record. The Virginian and the California roads encountered at the earlier part of the journey offered as much opposition to the progress of the car as any road possibly could. They were black and sticky and washed out by the spring rains. In some places the Saxon Trail Blazer was the first car over the road for several weeks.

Certain stretches, of course, the roads are very good and enable the car to balance up very well on its outlined schedule.

The car has made a tremendous hit all along the route. It has given splendid performance and established economy records which will be extremely valuable when published.

Not only will the results of this Saxon Roadster investigation make the trip well worth while, but when it is realized that this is the first known automobile to completely go around the border of the United States, a new significance is given the run and interest is created for all.

NOW COOK SWATTED ROOSTER

"Swat the rooster week" is past and now it's up to mother to cook the rooster that father swatted. And rooster meat need not be tough meat, either, if it is cooked correctly, says the home economics division at Ames, Iowa.

Hang the dressed fowl up for several days before cooking to soften the fibers, but be careful it does not spoil. Long, slow cooking in moist heat is best for meat that is likely to be tough. The fireless cooker is the best for this. Add one or two tablespoonsfuls of vinegar to the water to help soften the fibers. If more rooster meat is on hand than can be used at once, and if the supply of cans is not short, can the surplus meat by the cold pack method for winter use.

Do not always serve boiled rooster; vary the dish. Mix the meat with crumbs, seasoning and eggs and make "rooster loaf," similar to meat loaf. Make croquettes or chicken pie or jellied chicken. Many good recipes can be found, using either gelatin or the chicken aspic to set the stock for this latter. Make a scalloped dish, using chopped meat, rice and gravy.

In case the roosters have not yet been swatted, it is best to separate them from the flock and feed them on a mash of ground oats, bran, shorts and tankage moistened with sour milk. This will help soften the flesh.

FREE MANUALS FOR HOME CANNING AND DRYING

That a brief and practical "Home Canning Manual for Vegetables and Fruits" and a similar manual for home drying of vegetables and fruits can be obtained free by writing to the National Emergency Food Garden Commission at 210 Maryland Building, Washington, D. C., is the announcement made by that commission to the committee on resources and food supply of the State Council of Defense. These free publications tell how to make cheap and simple apparatus for sun-drying or for drying fruit or vegetables over the cook stove, and describe labor saving ways such as the "cold pack" method, or such as the canning of rhubarb without any cooking at all.

"Because of its extreme acidity," says the manual, "rhubarb may be canned without the process required for other products, as the acids destroy germ life. Select rhubarb that is young and tender, cutting into two-inch pieces or into lengths to fit container. Sterilize containers in advance. Pack the prepared rhubarb into containers in upright position and then cover contents with fresh cold water. Allow containers to stand ten minutes, drain off water, fill again with fresh cold water, and seal, using sterilized rubber and cover."

37 SACKS OF BARLEY TO ACRE YIELD AT UNIVERSITY FARM

Thirty-seven sacks of barley to the acre—such was this year's average yield of barley at the University of California farm at Davis, as compared with fifteen sacks to the acre, the average in 1908. The increase is due to summer fallowing, rotation, good seed, and early seeding.

An enormous increase in the production of food in California would come about if the farmers of the state would take advantage of the improved grain-growing methods demonstrated by the university at the university farm. To further this, special demonstrations will be given on ways of increasing grain yields, in the Farmers' Short Courses at the university farm from September 24 to November 2.

One piece of land at the university farm this year produced over forty sacks of barley to the acre—4871 pounds to the acre. This piece of land had been continuously pastured or grain-farmed ever since it was first plowed. Last year it was summer-fallowed and kept cultivated to conserve the moisture, and seeded about December 15.

One "war measure" that has been suggested as a means of relieving freight congestion provides for loading and unloading of freight cars on Sundays as well as holidays. Southern Pacific agents who are now engaged in a growing tonnage campaign are appealing to shippers help out the country generally utilizing Sundays and holidays free freight cars on their sidings. It is pointed out that a genuine emergency exists—one that threatens national welfare—and that emergency measures should be undertaken. It is pointed out that one-seventh of a freight car's time is entirely lost by the practice of refraining from loading or unloading it on Sundays.

1. The first step in the process is to identify the problem or issue that needs to be addressed. This involves gathering information and understanding the context of the problem.

THE FERTILIZER PROBLEM

Following the lead of practically all other commodities, the price of fertilizer and fertilizing materials has been mounting steadily during the last eighteen months. Nor does there seem to be any relief in sight. This rise in price is not due to a mere inflation of value, but to an actual shortage of all types of fertilizing materials, organic as well as inorganic. In this country, this condition has been brought about, directly or indirectly, by the war and will probably continue to a greater or less extent while the war lasts.

The supply of fertilizer for next spring is, apparently problematical, all present indications pointing to a heavy shortage with consequent high prices governing.

Some advance buying is being done and those growers who are financially able to buy fertilizers and take delivery this fall, for spring use, will undoubtedly be ahead of the game. They are assured of their supply and at a cheaper price than is indicated for spring.

We know by past experience that if the citrus tree is provided with a plentiful supply of available plant food in connection with moisture and reasonable care, a profitable crop may be obtained.

The care that the orchard gets—and the water—are fixed charges and vary per acre but slightly from year to year on an average.

The efficiency, or crop production, of these fixed charges depends on the amount of available plant-food supplied. And the available plant-food depends on the fertilizer or the soil treatment resorted to to make plant-food available. We must have readily available plant-food in the soil to feed the trees and the crop in order that the regular orchard work and expense be not wasted.

There is, however, a cheap and profitable way to tide over the present abnormal condition of the fertilizer market that is being overlooked by the large portion of our growers, and that is by a liberal application of non-caustic, quickly available type of lime carbonate to all soils of this section which do not show by test an excess of this material.

Such an application will not only render more available the natural plant-foods of the soil, but will react upon the plant-food which has been accumulated from the application of fertilizer during the past years. Later on, when fertilizer prices revert to their former level, the supply of plant-food in the soil may be augmented at much lower cost than now.

The use of lime on Southern California soils is more or less of a new proposition. However, during the past few years its value in citrus orchards has been thoroughly proven. There are numerous instances of its value to citrus culture in the Southern California section.

The value of lime for agricultural purposes has been known for centuries. Long before anything was known about phosphoric acid, potash or nitrogen or the part which they play in crop production, the liming of soils was a common agricultural practice. It gave better crops—for a while—and then the yields declined. Nor would the addition of more lime bring back the productivity. This gave rise to the old saying that "lime makes the father rich and the son poor," which is, of course, only another way of saying that the use of lime depletes the soil.

But it gave better crops—and how? In the light of our present knowledge of soils, we know it was by making the plant-foods of the soil available, and holding them in that condition until they were used by the crops.

Lime possesses this power to a very marked degree, not only on the plant foods occurring in the soil, but also on those of fertilizers, recent extensive experiments by the expert station having shown that the use of lime in connection with fertilization, increased the efficiency of the fertilizer nearly 50 per cent.

Entirely aside from the effect which the addition of lime will have on the availability of the plant-foods comes the action on the formation of humus and the effect on the physical condition of the soil. In the choice of an agricultural lime though—there are several points to be remembered. It must not be a caustic (fiery) type of lime, since the causticity will burn or destroy the pumice. It must be in a very finely divided form in order to make its effect felt as soon as possible. The more finely divided the lime carbonate, the greater the availability and therefore the effect.

Use rock lime—air-slaked lime—hydrated lime—sugar lime—if you will, according to your belief, but if you wish to tide over the high price of fertilizer plant-foods and collect that which your soil naturally contains, as well as that which you have been storing away, use lime!

DECIDUOUS TREE GUMMING

George Quinn, horticultural instructor of the South Australian government, discusses the matter which is of concern to every deciduous fruit grower in a recent issue of the Fruit World of Australasia. He says:

"Gum is simply sap which has been exposed and congealed or changed by contact with external agencies. Frequently, however, the change is made in stone fruits through the agency of fungi which have gained an entrance by wounds of a greater or lesser extent, or even by means of the buds, which are less able to resist than the more solid bark. The exudation from wounds made by pruning is increased when the pruning is performed at a time when the sap is still slightly liquid, but not actively flowing, as it is when the tree is making or sustaining foliage. One cannot say that early, medium or late pruning after the leaves have fallen will give rise to it in any given season, for the simple reason that in our climate the solidifying of the sap is scarcely completed some years before it begins to liquify again. In cold, dry winters the tree either goes more completely to rest, and the solidification of the sap is more complete, or the closing up of the channels at the cuts is more rapidly attained by natural processes of cauterization (drying)."

"In a year like the present the peeled-off bark, especially on young trees, even at midwinter reveals a moisture to the touch in the sap layers and when the weather is consistently wet, so that the cut ends do not dry up. This sap is bound to exude and congeal into gum. Unless wound fungi find a lodgement on these cut ends the gum will solidify as soon as the weather turns dry and form a sort of natural plaster. In respect to artificial dressings to prevent injury, grafting waxes will not, as a rule, adhere to moist surfaces. The best suggestion I can make is to spray or paint the cuts with a strong fungicide, such as Bordeaux mixture. This will disinfect the wounds and keep out decay-producing organisms until the healing tissue is drawn over the wounds by the action of the tree's growth. I may say in a general sense I believe the very prevalent decline of our apricot trees will be found to have been hastened by the heavy prunings of winter having admitted decay into the fibrous tissues of the limbs and trunks of the trees, thus lowering their vitality, although externally there is little evidence to this effect at the time. When a severe strain, such as the protracted drought of recent years has imposed upon the trees' powers, this lowered vitality must prove an important factor in deciding whether they shall live or die."

"I believe, if it is possible to initiate a system whereby the making of these large wounds can be avoided, and the energies of the tree in building up its permanent structure be directed into the desired channels during the growing season, much will be achieved toward increasing the tree's chances of sustaining a long life. As an indication of the practical application of this theory I suggest several summer manipulations in the form of budding surplus shoots, even to complete suppression, whilst others more suitably placed have their terminal points pinched out to cause them to subdivide into growths needed for framing the tree or maintaining a supply of fruit-bearing shoots."

WESTERN CANADIAN FARMERS RECEIVE PRIZES

Within the last few days a number of farmers in western Canada have received medals and diplomas for their agricultural produce exhibits at the San Francisco fair in 1915. The exhibits were made under the auspices of the Canadian Pacific railway, which itself had its own building and large display on the grounds, for which it was awarded a gold medal. The successful farmers and the medals awarded are as follows:

A. L. Fryberger, Gem, Alberta, gold medal for speltz.
P. C. Hansen, Pincher Creek, Alberta, gold medal for wheat.
Arthur Perry, Cardston, Alberta, gold medals for wheat, oats and barley, and silver medal for grasses.
N. Taitinger, Claresholm, Alberta, gold medals for barley and wheat.
J. T. Worthington, Olds, Alberta, gold medal for wheat and silver medal for flax.

A. E. Barnes, Nemiskam, Alberta, silver medal for oats.
S. G. Hagen, Winterburn, Alberta, silver medal for oats.
T. Maynard, Deloraine, Manitoba, silver medal for wheat.
Jos. R. Peterson, Raymond, Alberta, silver medal for timothy.

Among the British Columbia exhibitors, medals and diplomas were awarded to Stirling and Pitcairn, of Kelowna, and Mrs. Jack McGregor, of Peachland.

Each of the exhibitors received diplomas with his medals. Although the distribution of medals, for unavoidable causes, is somewhat delayed, it comes at this time when the eyes of the world are turned upon the food-producing countries as a vivid reminder of western Canada's capabilities in that direction.

Chummy Roadster
Here's the latest type among motor cars. It is designed with special intent to serve those who feel no need for the greater passenger capacity of big touring cars. Four passengers are provided for comfortably—two in front and two in rear seat.
To add to the convenience of this car, an aisle between the two front seats has been made wide enough to allow easy entrance to the rear seat. The particular feature of this Chummy Roadster that arrests your attention is the racy sporting quality of the body design. It is a fresh and pleasing departure from the comparatively conventional lines that mark most roadster types.
Saxon Chummy Roadster handles easily, drives straight, rides lightly over rough stretches and grips the road closely at all speeds.
Saxon Chummy Roadster is designed to meet a particular need. Many people seldom have use for more seating capacity than a roadster car but should emergency require, the auxiliary seat of Saxon Chummy Roadster meets the requirements. Four people can be seated comfortably if occasion demands—and yet, when one is driving alone the weight of the car is approximately the same as a roadster and the driver is not burdened with the excess of the big touring car.
We have one of these cars at our garage ready for inspection and demonstration.
